EXAMPLE STORY GUIDE

With Natalie Fisher of www.asknataliefisher.com

1 SENTENCE STORY EXAMPLES

I am a government relations professional who is passionate about translating policy and politics into grassroots action.

I am the Project Manager that aggregates the research, client input, and creative output into an on-schedule, on-budget deliverable.

I am the accountant who can help you take more vacations!

I am the research analyst who will help turn your data into clear, actionable information.

I'm a WordPress expert who optimizes content and user interaction elements to dramatically improve site conversion rates and increase revenue. I also create detailed strategies to increase visitors numbers.

I am the Harvard MBA who will help you strategically grow your business by generating new customers, increasing order size and repeat business.

I am a polyglot BRIC expert with entrepreneurial background, who can help you leverage resources efficiently in different regions, hence delivering strategic and transformational projects on time and meeting clients' expectations.

I am the biomedical scientist and lean operations expert who uses data to drive performance excellence in healthcare organizations.

I'm a technology professional who helps you get unstuck and deliver on your projects.

I am the expert market analyst that will source and evaluate the most attractive opportunities in molecular diagnostics today.

I am that analytical person who enjoys people and who can help influence decision-makers to make good decisions based on solid organizational analysis.

I am the global technology professional who differentiates your company by implementing disruptive solutions.

I'm the creative policy researcher who can help you get immediate value from your data.

I'm the writer who will persuade your audience.

I am the engineer who creates and communicates.

I'm the Project Manager with 360° vision who can diplomatically ensure project excellence, compliance and deliverables on time for long-term financially-successful partnerships.

I'm the environmental scientist who can help guide staff in hazard mitigation, as well as teach others to eliminate health and safety exposure threats.

I'm the exceptional communicator who can help you build trust with your audience, deliver your message effectively, and create online presences that are both meaningful and inspired.

I'm the editorial professional who can make sure you're publishing material your audience will actually read.

I'm the editorial professional who will ensure that your audience will actually read what you publish.

I am the Project Engineer who shapes teams into lean efficiency experts.

I am a developer of Enterprise software for the iPad.

I am the industrial engineer, with a focus on applying lean, green, and sustainable technology to the

I am a Business Intelligence Analyst with a focus on how information affects decision making ability.

I'm the " clinical specialist who can help you implement change"

I'm the Morehouse graduate who can help you manage both your strategic and creative teams

I'm the digital marketing and strategic alliances expert who can help create powerful online presences, craft cost-effective campaign strategies and build meaningful relationships with clients and vendors.

I am the renewable energy expert who can easily translate between the technical, business, and marketing communications sides.

I am the operations support technician who ensures safe, reliable operations in critical and non critical situations.

I'm the organizational psychology professional who can solve your organizational behavior issues.

I'm the psychology woman who can analyze your data and persuade your stakeholders.

I am the information security consultant who reduces security risks and achieves compliance for your business.

I am the walrus who will help your company koo-koo-ka-choo.

I'm the Solar Engineer that has been recognized multiple times for improving communication and customer morale when managing projects.

I am an ambitious, entrepreneurial-minded college student with vast array of valuable experiences in the various layers of a business (from R&D to operations to management) who can provide you, the hedge fund, with a unique perspective for analyzing companies and generating fantastic ideas to help you

I am a Project Management Professional (PMP) who helps global companies deliver products and and minimize operation costs.

I'm the Project Engineer that can help you keep projects on track by managing the schedule, field operations, and costs.

I'm the sustainable infrastructure specialist who will help you implement successful solutions.

I am an experienced biotech researcher who can bring drug development understanding and hands-on laboratory research experience for the advisement of biotech/pharmaceutical clientele in consulting cases.

I'm the expert trainer, who develops your employees with vital skills that improve your company's performance and profit.

I'm the blogger who can help you make more from your current customers by optimizing the way they see your business.

I am a Communications Project Manager Professional and can help you run your marketing campaigns more effectively.

I’m the product manager who can translate business requirements into technical specifications and who can help you design, launch, and analyze new product features.

I'm a project leader with international experience and perspectives. I can utilize my background in implementing complex projects to design and deliver learning & development programs that drive continual improvement for individuals and organizations.

I am your creatively, systematic IT nerd who will teach your clients how to get the best out of your products.

I'm the accountant who can improve processes and bring efficiency to help save you money.

I'm an expert Financial Analyst, who can guide you in making risk minimal financial decisions, by presenting with variables & parameters of a decision, impact of those decisions on companies performance and alternative course of actions to maximize the profitability & shareholder confidence

I am the bi-lingual (Business and Tech) Tableau Implementation Expert who can help you over-deliver on client engagements and build customer relationships for life.

I'm a computer systems engineer with software development and computer networking experience who will help you taking advantage of new technologies to improve customer experience, save more money and time.

I am the polyglot policy expert who translates policy into images, messages and actions.

I am the polyglot public institutions specialist who makes your policy action visible through images, messages and events.

I am the business analyst that can help improve stakeholder and client relationships.

I'm the creative director who collaborates with his clients to create products, services & experiences that will grow their business.

I am a strategic researcher who helps organizations understand the links between health outcomes, nature, and building design.

I am the communications professional who can translate your business strategy into the actions employees will take to execute it.

I am the polymath who can help you with creative strategies.

Structural engineer who can adapt to any situation and know the difference between when it's important to get a quick answer or analyze the hell out of something.

I am a lawyer specialising in media law and I specifically deal with international copyright protection and unfair trade practices.

I'm a customer-obsessed brand manager with a background in technology and entrepreneurship. My goal is to grow revenue and create new products without losing sight of your company's soul.

I'm the data-obsessed real estate development analyst who can help you get hard-to-find answers in an opaque, tech-averse $10 trillion dollar industry (real estate) by deriving key business insights and investment potential from raw, messy data to help expand your business to new markets.

I am the project Coordinator who make civil engineering companies to be successful in international projects through team work coordination, implementing processes and previous experience.

I am the strategic and analytical consultant with experience across industries who can help you evaluate opportunities, set strategic initiatives, and develop go-forward plans.

I am the modem designer who will use his signal processing pedigree, coding skills, and productive-yet-fun attitude to get your products delivered on time.

I provide strategic analyst relations counsel and flawless program execution resulting in market leadership positioning by Gartner, Forrester and Ovum, and being featured in more than 50 analyst reports over four years.

I am the social worker who helps you navigate complex situations with sensitivity.

I'm the designer who unlocks meaning and culture.

If you need someone who can communicate accurate and compelling results from data analyses, manage teams, and produce on-time and on-budget reports, I can help.

I am the hungry Regulatory expert with a background in Fixed Income Trading and Risk who will help you sell advisory solutions to your clients.

I am social and digital media marketing professional with extensive experience with million dollar tech start ups and other big players.

I am a nonprofit fundraiser guiding purpose-driven charities to financial success, excited about using my relationship-building skills in a corporate philanthropy setting.

I am the product designer who dives into details and research to help you transform complex problems into intuitive solutions.

I’m an innovative organisational change maker who brings strategic people-centric management skills to drive high performance in people and organisations.

I'm the biomedical engineer who analyzes, quantifies, and optimizes human movement